

User Demographics:

Age: 13–25

Occupation: Creative students, young artists, and pop-culture/anime fans.

Interests: Art, DIY projects, Y2K/2000s nostalgia, Winx-style fantasy, anime, aesthetic room décor.

Digital behavior: Create profiles, share artwork, participate in forums, shop or trade creative items online.

Develop User Persona:

Username: Luna Rivera

User Demographics:

- 16 years old
- Creative high-school student
- Loves Y2K, anime, Winx Club, and digital art
- Active on TikTok, Instagram, and Pinterest

User Backstory:

Luna loves drawing and creating aesthetic projects. She's always looking for places where she can share her art, get inspired, and connect with people her age who like the same things. Most websites feel either too serious or not creative enough, so she wants a colorful, friendly space that mixes creativity, shopping, and community.

User Needs:

- A place to upload and showcase her artwork
- A supportive community to exchange ideas and inspiration
- A customizable profile that matches her aesthetic
- An easy way to buy or trade creative items

How the product meets the user needs:

Glimmung lets users register, create a glittery personalized profile, upload art to themed galleries, participate in fun forum discussions, and explore a shop/exchange area for aesthetic items. It blends creativity, community, and Y2K visuals all in one space.

Value Proposition:

Glimmung solves the need for young creatives who want a fun, aesthetic place to share art, get inspired, and express their personal style. It combines a colorful online shop, community forums, customizable profiles, and themed art galleries in one easy-to-use platform. Unlike typical online stores or art sites, Glimmung mixes creativity, fantasy, and Y2K nostalgia in a unique interactive way.

User Research:

Research methods used with three potential users:

1. Interviews with three participants (a 15-year-old artist, an 18-year-old creative student, and a 20-year-old pop-culture fan).
2. Short online survey about art sharing habits, favorite aesthetics, and platform preferences.
3. Observation of how users interact with similar platforms (Pinterest, Etsy, Redbubble, DeviantArt).

Brainstorming:

Three brainstormed ideas:

1. Highly customizable glittery profiles with stickers and Y2K themes
2. Public gallery where users upload art and creative projects
3. "Shop & Exchange" section to buy or trade aesthetic or handmade items

Three aspects to integrate into the product:

- Visual customization (themes, stickers, glitter effects)
- Art-sharing gallery with themed categories
- A marketplace with buying/trading options

Prototype:

The prototype demonstrates:

1. User registration + customizable profile.
2. Creative gallery for uploading and discovering artwork.
3. Shop/Exchange area for creative items and décor.

Feedback Gathering:

Feedback from three users:

1. "The profiles are cute, but I want more Y2K theme options."
2. "The gallery should have categories like anime, fantasy, Y2K, etc."
3. "The shop/exchange needs filters to find items faster."

Feedback Integration:

Two feedback patterns identified:

1. Users want more visual customization (themes, colors, stickers).
2. Users want better organization in the gallery and shop.

Plan to integrate one of the patterns:

To improve customization, Glimmung will add more Y2K-inspired themes, animated stickers, and color palettes for profiles so users feel more represented and creative in their space.

Refined Prototype:

The refined prototype includes:

- Value Proposition: A unique space combining shopping, creativity, and Y2K/Winx-inspired aesthetics.
- User Persona: Luna Rivera, a creative 16-year-old student.
- Three key functionalities:
 1. Customizable profile
 2. Art gallery
 3. Shop/Exchange section
- Integrated feedback: More themes, gallery categories, and shop filters added.